Washington Women Asked to Write To and Provide Garments for Men in Trenches.

Do you wish to "adopt" (that is, to write to and take an interest in) a soldier of the invaded countries, and Belgium in particular?

This is a question now being asked Washington women for the first time, and Mrs. K. T. Holbrook of 1426 Massachusetts avenue is asking the question.

In this way it is hoped by Mrs. Holbrook that thousands of women in all parts of the land will be interested in the suffering soldier in Europe and will arrange to send them many needed garments for the winter's campaign.

CHINA ASKED TO DELAY CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT

Allied Powers Point Out Present Danger of Proclaiming Monarchy.

An official account of the communications recently made by the Japanese, British and Russian diplomatic representatives to the Chinese minister of foreign affairs has just reached Washington by cable. In substance, the account follows:

"The representatives of Great Britain, Japan and Russia made separate representations to the Chinese foreign minister, pointing out that the proclamation of a monarchy, while it would alter the existing state of things generally, might very likely lead to disorders, owing to the strong republican party in different parts of China."

Foreign Interests Jeopardized. They said that if disorders occurred foreign interests would inevitably suffer, especially the missionary interests, and, consequently, they hoped that while the European war lasted no change would be made in the name or the title of the Chinese government.

The Chinese minister for foreign affairs, replying to the representations, stated that he fully recognized the friendly intentions of the powers, but he pointed out that the situation was purely internal, and as the movement for the re-establishment of the monarchy was the outcome of the popular sentiment it was not one which the Chinese government could either suspend or delay or expedite. He added, replying to the suggestion of disorders to follow a change in government, that as to internal order he could give a formal guarantee for its preservation during the change.

Reply of Chinese Cabinet Officer. "The Chinese minister for foreign affairs, replying to the representations, stated that he fully recognized the friendly intentions of the powers, but he pointed out that the situation was purely internal, and as the movement for the re-establishment of the monarchy was the outcome of the popular sentiment it was not one which the Chinese government could either suspend or delay or expedite. He added, replying to the suggestion of disorders to follow a change in government, that as to internal order he could give a formal guarantee for its preservation during the change."

Further, he expressed the opinion that if the existing government made any attempt to suppress the monarchical movement, such an attempt at this stage instead of averting trouble would cause the very disturbances which the friends of China so strongly deprecated. He concluded by an expression of thanks for the friendly spirit shown in the communication, and said he would at once inform President Yuan Shi Kai.

Ascribe Cause to German Activity. Diplomatic representatives of the allied powers here openly ascribe to German activities the rapid development of the monarchical movement in China, upon the theory that the disorders likely to follow in China will require Japanese intervention and consequently a supply of arms and munitions to the Russians.

It is pointed out, however, that another strong and characteristically oriental factor is involved. This is said to be the absolute necessity of the Chinese mind for spiritual and material development. For centuries past it has been the custom of the Chinese emperor to repair annually to a special temple dedicated for that purpose in Peking and offer prayers to the three gods of heaven, agriculture and mining to prosper Chinese husbandry and business. The Chinese people have implicit confidence in the efficacy of these prayers.

Agitators in favor of the monarchy have spread abroad the conviction that a mere president, no matter how able and beloved, never could lift his voice to the godsheads.

TALES OF "THE LIVING DEAD."
L. W. Rogers Delivers an Address Before Theological Society.

"Does the individual consciousness survive bodily death?" was the subject discussed last evening by L. W. Rogers of Los Angeles, national lecturer of the Theological Society, who spoke at Theological Hall, 1216 H street northwest, on "The Living Dead." Mr. Rogers stated that scientific investigators have established three vital points in psychic research—that there is such a thing as psychic force; that such force is directed by intelligence; and that the intelligence is not that of people living in the physical world.

Mr. Rogers cited a number of instances of communications purporting to come from celebrated people, including the very subject of the address, which he said was such as to admit of no other explanation. Tonight Mr. Rogers will give the second of his course of lectures, speaking on "Reincarnation."

VAUGHN CLASS CLUB PROGRAM

Informal Supper, Music by Quartet and Addresses.

An informal supper, music by the class quartet and other forms of entertainment, concluded the November meeting of the Vaughn Class Club of Calvary Baptist Sunday school, held last night at the Sunday school house, with President Patterson in the chair.

Wallace W. Fowler gave tenor solos, stories were told by B. C. Gelsinger and L. B. Mann gave a number of amusing dialect selections. C. E. Emig talked on the opportunities of the hour in religious work, and Raymond H. Berry, who leaves Washington today for Parkersburg, W. Va., made a farewell speech to the club. The program closed with a practical talk by the pastor, Rev. Louis D. Biles, and the singing of the class hymn.
